

Ottawa Citizen, Sunday September 5, 2010

OVER THE TRANSOM

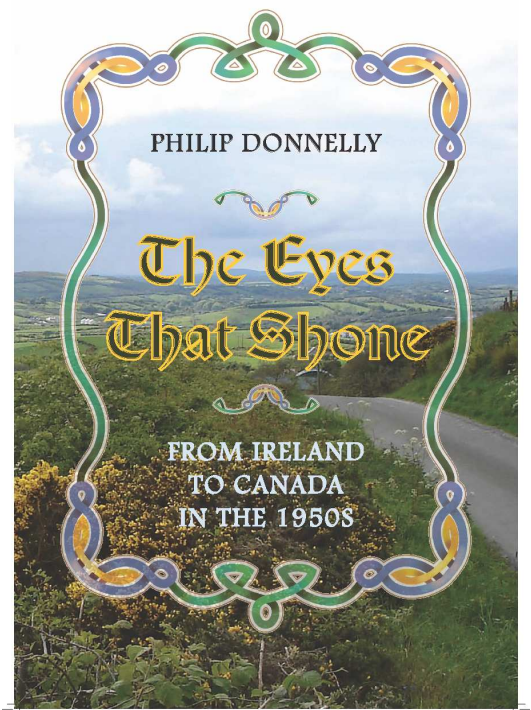

Books by Ottawa-area authors

The Eyes That Shone: From Ireland to Canada in the 1950s

By Philip Donnelly

General Store Publishing House

Author Philip Donnelly's beloved first wife, Nancy, died in 2001 after more than 42 years of marriage – their relationship beginning at a dance in Dublin, then to decades spent living and raising a family in Toronto and then Ottawa. In this book – part genealogy, part memoir, part fancy – Donnelly looks at their lives together, starting with their families roots. The book includes messages and memories from their children and friends, warm reminiscences of time spent in Ottawa and the author's musings on “what ifs.”

- Kristin Endermann